Purdue Department of Philosophy Master Course List

100 LEVEL COURSES

11000 The Big Questions: Introduction to Philosophy
The basic problems and types of philosophy, with special emphasis on the problems of knowledge and the nature of reality.

11100 Introduction to Ethics
A study of the nature of moral value and obligation. Topics such as the following will be considered: different conceptions of the good life and standards of right conduct; the relation of nonmoral and moral goodness; determinism, free will, and the problem of moral responsibility; the political and social dimensions of ethics; the principles and methods of moral judgment. Readings will be drawn both from contemporary sources and from the works of such philosophers as Plato, Aristotle, Aquinas, Butler, Hume, Kant, and J. S. Mill.

11400 Global Moral Issues
A systematic and representative examination of significant contemporary moral problems with a focus on global issues such as international justice, poverty and foreign aid, nationalism and patriotism, just war, population and the environment, human rights, gender equality, and national self-determination.

12000 Critical Thinking
This course is designed to develop reasoning skills and analytic abilities, based on an understanding of the rules or forms as well as the content of good reasoning. This course will cover moral and scientific reasoning, in addition to ordinary problem solving. This course is intended primarily for students with nontechnical backgrounds.

15000 Principles of Logic
A first course in formal deductive logic; mechanical and other procedures for distinguishing good arguments from bad. Truth-tables and proofs for sentential (Boolean) connectives, followed by quantificational logic with relations. Although metatheoretic topics are treated, the emphasis is on methods.

200 LEVEL COURSES

20600 Philosophy of Religion
The course encourages critical reflection on traditional and contemporary views about God and other religious ideas. Topics include arguments for God's existence, the problem of evil, understanding the divine attributes, miracles, religious pluralism, and life after death.

20700 Ethics for Technology, Engineering, And Design
The practices of technology, engineering, and design are full or moral as well as technical challenges. This course provides a global, bottom-up, and professional perspective on ethics education, based on the nature of these professional activities. It uses case studies focusing on situations, incidents, and topics that have occurred in international and cross-cultural business and research environments. The course culminates in a reflection of the students own technology, engineering, or design project experience, and so is restricted to those students who have already had or are concurrently engaged in such a project.
20800 Ethics of Data Science
As applications of data science permeate more aspects of our lives, new and important ethical issues are arising. However, especially because we’re entering uncharted territory, reasoning clearly about the ethical implications of data science isn’t easy. This course provides students with the tools for doing so, including a conceptual framework for ethical reasoning in professional settings, as well as a procedure for case-study analysis that allows students to practice employing this conceptual framework. Together, these components help prepare students to be ethical professionals and responsible global citizens.

21900 Philosophy and the Meaning of Life
A survey of both the philosophical and more literary writings of the existentialist movement. Readings will be chosen from among the following writers: Kierkegaard, Nietzsche, Dostoevsky, Kafka, Marcel, Heidegger, Camus, Sartre, Jaspers, de Beauvoir, Ortega, and Merleau-Ponty.

22100 Introduction to Philosophy of Science
An introduction to the scope and methods of science and to theories of its historical development. Topics include scientific revolutions, theories of scientific method, the nature of scientific discovery, explanation, and the role of values in scientific change.

22300 Fate and Free Will
This course encourages critical reflection on the nature and possibility of human freedom in a world like ours that appears to be determined by unchanging causal and physical laws. Topics include the compatibility of free will and determinism, the possibility of moral responsibility without free will, and the incentives (if any) for future planning if our future fate is already sealed.

22500 Philosophy and Gender
An examination of the beliefs, assumptions, and values found in traditional and contemporary philosophical analyses of women. A range of feminist approaches to knowledge, values, and social issues will be introduced.

23000 Religions of the East
(REL 230) A study of the history, teachings, and present institutions of the religions of India, Southeast Asia, China, and Japan. This will include Hinduism, Jainism, Sikhism, Buddhism, Confucianism, Taoism, Shintoism, and Zoroastrianism.

23100 Religions of the West
A comparative study of the origins, institutions, and theologies of the three major Western religions, Judaism, Christianity, and Islam.

24000 Social and Political Philosophy
A study of some major social and political philosophers from Plato to contemporary authors. Issues such as justice, rights and freedom, community, and the "globalized" future will be considered.

24200 Philosophy, Culture, and the African American Experience
The purpose of this course is to consider African American based or inspired conceptions of Western philosophy and new visions of what it is to do philosophy sensitive to culturally rooted diversity.

26000 Philosophy and Law
A discussion of philosophical issues in the law: a critical examination of such basic concepts in law as property, civil liberty, punishment, right, contract, crime and responsibility; and a survey of some main philosophical theories about the nature and justification of legal systems. Readings will be drawn from both law and philosophy.
27000 Biomedical Ethics
An examination of the moral problems raised by developments in medicine and the biomedical sciences. Topics include abortion, reproductive technologies, euthanasia and physician-assisted suicide, experiments involving human subjects, and health care delivery.

27500 Philosophy of Art
A survey of the principal theories concerning the nature, function, and value of the arts from classical times to the present.

28000 Ethics and Animals
An exploration through the study of major historical and contemporary philosophical writings of basic moral issues as they apply to our treatment of animals. Rational understanding of the general philosophical problems raised by practices such as experimentation on animals or meat-eating will be emphasized.

29000 Environmental Ethics
An introduction to philosophical issues surrounding debates about the environment and our treatment of it. Topics may include endangered species, "deep ecology," the scope and limits of cost-benefit analyses, and duties to future generations.

29300 Selected Topics in Philosophy
A critical examination of some special topic or topics in philosophy. Details concerning topics selected for treatment in a given semester may be obtained in advance from the Department of Philosophy. Sections of this course may sometimes be initiated by students upon petition to the department.

An intensive examination of selected problems concerning the nature of human knowledge, its scope and limits, its relation to sense-perception and memory. Variable content.

53500  Studies in Philosophy of Mind
An intensive study of select topics in the philosophy of mind such as the explanation of human behavior, knowledge of other minds, the relation between mind and body, and the nature of persons. Variable content.

54000  Studies in Social and Political Philosophy
A detailed study of one or more important concepts in social or political philosophy, such as natural rights, revolution, law, freedom, justice, or political obligation. Variable content.
54500  Recent Analytic Philosophy
A survey of contemporary developments in analytic philosophy, with emphasis on major issues relevant to the philosophy of language, epistemology, and metaphysics. The course will cover such figures as W.V.O. Quine and Saul Kripke, and such problems as analyticity and necessity, ontological relativity, and the definition of knowledge.

55000  Advanced Symbolic Logic
A study of the properties of formal systems, including consistency and completeness theorems for the propositional calculus, the first order predicate calculus, and various modal logics, as well as a brief consideration of Godel's incompleteness theorem. Students who have taken MA 585 should not take this course; PHIL 650 is more appropriate.

55100  Philosophy of the Natural Sciences
A survey of issues and theories in contemporary philosophy of science. Variable content.

55200  Philosophy of the Social Sciences
An exploration of the nature of the concepts in the social sciences, and a study of the ways in which they have been and are employed.

55300  Mathematical Logic
This class is an introduction to various logical foundations of mathematics as well as the basics of logical metatheory.

55500  Critical Theory
An analysis of either the historical development or the contemporary relevance of critical theory. Primary texts may be selected from the "old" Frankfurt School (Horkheimer, Adorno, Marcuse, Benjamin, Fromm) or from "new" critical theory (Habermas, Wellmer, Honneth, Benhabib, and others).

57500  Problems in Aesthetics
An intensive examination of some of the characteristic questions of contemporary esthetic theory. Variable content.

58000  Pro-seminar in Philosophy
Designed primarily for majors in philosophy who have already successfully completed six hours in philosophy. Other students may be admitted to the course with the special consent of the instructor in charge. Topic to be selected by the department.

59000  Directed Reading in Philosophy
A reading course directed by the instructor in whose particular field of specialization the content of the reading falls. Approval of each reading project must be secured from the department.

600 LEVEL COURSES

60100  Special Topics in Ancient Philosophy
A detailed critical analysis of special problems or texts in ancient philosophy. Prerequisite: PHIL 50100.

61000  Seminar in Recent Continental Philosophy
An intensive, critical examination of some of the current modes of thought in recent continental philosophy, including phenomenology, critical theory, hermeneutics, deconstruction, and postmodernism. Selected writings from representative figures. Topics and texts will vary from semester to semester. Prerequisite: PHIL 51000 or 52000.
62400  Seminar in Ethics
An intensive study of some persistent problems of ethics, metaethics, and theory of action such as: intrinsic goods, ends and means, the concepts of utility, justice, and duty; facts and values, justification, ethical relativism, free will and blame-worthiness, belief, and action. Emphasis will be on contemporary discussions. Variable subject matter.

65000  Advanced Topics in Logic
Concentration usually centers on general problems connected with modal and many-valued logics, and the significance of their solution for specific calculi of this sort. Variable content. Prerequisite: PHIL 55000 or MA 58500.

66500  Philosophy of Language
An introduction to some of the main concepts and problems in the philosophy of language, such as meaning, reference, and private languages, through readings in the chief contributors to the field. Prerequisite: 6 credit hours in Philosophy.

68000  Seminar in Philosophy
An intensive course for graduate students majoring or minoring in philosophy. The content of the seminar will be determined in accordance with the needs and interests of the students. Prerequisite: 6 credit hours at the graduate level in Philosophy.

68300  Studies in Continental Rationalism
