

German 603/605: Reading German – Spring 2018

This course is designed to advance the skills of students in the Liberal Arts and Sciences in the reading of German texts (philosophical, historical, scientific, etc). A reading plan for the semester will be set during the first week of the course based on the abilities, needs, and interests of those enrolled. Students of varying levels of ability are welcome. German 601 or equivalent (roughly a year of German at the college level) are assumed, but all interested students are encouraged to contact the instructor (jturco@purdue.edu).

Instructor: Professor Turco

Prerequisite: Permission of Instructor or GER 601.
