In this 6 credit course students learn the rigors of ethnographic field methods in the heart of the Brazilian Amazon.

In addition to methods training, students work with anthropologists, conservation biologists, indigenous leaders, and NGO directors from the area on a final project tailored to their academic and professional goals.

This course is open to all majors and there are no language prerequisites. Students wishing to learn Portuguese prior to the trip should contact Dr. Zanotti to discuss options.

Undergraduate and graduate students are encouraged to apply. This program is also available as an honors course.
