Curriculum October 2019

FVS 29000- Special Topics in Film/Video Studies
New Course
Special topics or projects under the direction of an instructor in a particular field of specialization.

FVS 33200- Live Events Video Production
Course Revision (course description, course title)

FVS 33201- Sports Video Production Fall/Winter
New Course
This experiential course furthers the students’ understanding of live sports video production. Lecture combined with various production experiences increase the students’ proficiency with professional technology and equipment as well as the art and storytelling of the craft. Potential Men’s and Women’s Fall/Winter sports include Cross Country, Soccer, Volleyball, Football, Swimming & Diving, Wrestling, Basketball, or Track & Field.

FVS 33202- Sports Video Production Winter/Spring
New Course
This experiential course furthers the students’ understanding of live sports video production. Lecture combined with various production experiences increase the students’ proficiency with professional technology and equipment as well as the art and storytelling of the craft. Potential Men’s and Women’s Winter/Spring sports include Swimming & Diving, Wrestling, Basketball, Baseball, Softball, Tennis, Golf, or Track & Field.

FVS 33700- Editing I
Course Revision (learning outcomes)

FVS 33800- Editing II
Course Revision (learning outcomes)

FVS 44200- Directing Short Film
Course Revision (course description, course title, credit hours, learning outcomes)

FVS 44600- Producing Non-Fiction Video
New Course
This advanced course builds on previous knowledge and exposes students to the role of an independent video producer. By working with real world clients on real world projects, students will gain valuable experience in guiding productions from start to finish. Additionally, students will learn basic fundamentals of entrepreneurship and business skills designed to begin to prepare students to form their own video production business.
GER 20500- Accelerated Intermediate German
New Course
An accelerated intermediate level course in German designed to achieve second year language proficiency in German. The course is appropriate for students who would like to accelerate the process of learning German.

KOR 101- Korean Level I
New Course
This course is the first half of the Elementary Korean language sequence. It is designed for those who have no prior (or very limited) knowledge of Korean. Lecture will introduce new material and explain conversational patterns considering grammatical, lexical, and pragmatic aspects of Korean. Some class meetings will be conducted entirely in Korean. Emphasis is placed on the fundamentals of listening, speaking, reading, and writing. In addition, students will be exposed to everyday life contexts (e.g., language use, culture, etc.) likely to be encountered in contemporary Korean society.

KOR 10200- Elementary Korean II
New Course
This course is the second half of the elementary Korean language sequence. As a continuation of Korean 101, the main purpose of Korean 102 is to expand on the study of the Korean language and culture. The class will introduce new material and explain conversational patterns considering grammatical, lexical, and pragmatic aspects of Korean. Some class meetings will be conducted entirely in Korean. Students continue to learn vocabulary, pronunciation, grammar, and the writing system by practicing Korean to achieve Novice High level of speaking, listening, reading, and writing.

KOR 20100- Korean Level III
New Course
This course is the first half of the intermediate Korean language sequence. The main purpose of Korean 201 is to expand on the study of the Korean language and culture, and develop an Intermediate Low proficiency level. Some class meetings are conducted entirely in Korean. Students practice reading and listening comprehension, grammar, vocabulary building, and conversations that require a variety of styles, pragmatic considerations, and knowledge of Korean cultural topics. Skills for simple narration and written report will be enhanced. Students rely on authentic materials for introduction of Korean culture and authentic language usage.

KOR 20200- Korean Level IV
New Course
This course is the second half of the intermediate Korean language sequence. The main purpose of Korean 202 is to expand on the study of the Korean language and culture, and develop an Intermediate Mid proficiency level. Some class meetings are conducted entirely in Korean. The course provides students with further conversational and grammatical skills. Students practice reading comprehension, grammar, vocabulary, and conversation using textbooks and authentic materials for introduction of Korean culture and authentic language usage.