UCC REVIEW FOR SCLA 101

- During summer 2019, faculty members of the Undergraduate Curriculum Council reviewed materials submitted for courses that meet the Written Communication Outcome of the UCC.
- SCLA 10100 Transformative Texts: Critical Thinking and Communication I was assessed by the UCC and received a “3” or “Excellent,” meaning the course met all three of the minimum criteria.
- SCLA 10100 will be retained on the Core and will be assessed again in 5 years.

Minimum criteria for writing instruction in courses deemed to meet the WC foundational outcome:

1. Essays and other writing-based projects (rather than exams, quizzes, and the like) are the class's primary mode of student assessment
2. The class incorporates explicit writing instruction/workshops into its schedule.
3. The class incorporates assignment scaffolding, feedback, revision, and reflection into its student assessment.

SCLA 10100 was reviewed using the established university foundational outcomes.

At the conclusion of the course, the student:

1. Demonstrates understanding of context, audience, and purpose that is responsive to the assigned task(s) and focuses on all elements of the work.
2. Uses appropriate and relevant content to explore ideas and/or demonstrate mastery of the subject, conveying the writer's understanding, and shaping the work.
3. Demonstrates attention to and successful execution of organization, content, presentation, format and stylistic choices in writing.
4. Demonstrates use of credible, relevant resources to support ideas that are situated within the discipline and genre of writing.
5. Uses language that effectively communicates meaning to readers with clarity and fluency.

It is expected that writing is taught as both a skill and a process. A primary emphasis of the course must be writing instruction, as opposed to simply assigning writing.

SCLA 101 LEARNING OUTCOMES: WRITTEN COMMUNICATION

By the end of the semester, students should be able to:

1. Write with clarity, coherence, and concision in a variety of genres.
2. Demonstrate an understanding of the importance of rhetorical situations and choices for a variety of audiences and contexts.
3. Demonstrate critical thinking about writing through reading, analysis, discussion, composing and revising texts in a range of genres.
4. Apply a clear understanding of the process of writing and successfully organize, present, and communicate meaning to fellow readers.
5. Identify, analyze, and evaluate the claims of a variety of sources.
6. Engage critically with transformative texts, drawing on multiple perspectives including the individual, the historical, and the contemporary.

The Undergraduate Curriculum Council offered these suggestions:

For the next round of assessment, the UCC suggests additional standardization across syllabi, showing evidence that all sections offer writing instruction within the syllabus and within examples of student work, with particular attention to scaffolding, feedback, and revision.

During Spring 2020, Cornerstone leadership and a faculty working group will collaborate with the Purdue Writing Lab to standardize writing instruction across all sections of SCLA 101.
