Palma de Mallorca

Palma de Mallorca is the capital of the Autonomous Community of Balearic Islands of Spain, and is located in the south coast of Mallorca. Mallorca is the largest of all the Balearic Islands (Minorca, Ibiza, and Formentera) and considered a major tourist destination in Europe. The island is surrounded by turquoise warm waters, which attract millions of tourists every year.

The city is a popular destination due to its warm weather, history and art. The Palma de Mallorca airport is the third largest airport in Spain and 15 minutes away from the City Center. Palma also prides itself from being one of the most multilingual and diverse cities in Spain. Both Spanish and Catalan are official languages and many people are fluent in German and English.

Academic Program

Classes will take place at the University of Balearic Islands (UIB) in Palma. The university and the Center for the Study of the Spanish Language have a well-known international reputation in the teaching of Spanish as second language, and is accredited by the Cervantes Institute. Students will stay with Spanish families and will be exposed to Spanish 24 hours a day.

Participants will enroll in two courses: SPAN 301 (Spanish Level V), SPAN 398 (Spanish Politics and Society), or in SPAN 398 (Spanish Modernism) for a total of six credit hours of direct Purdue credit with letter grades. All courses are taught in Spanish. In addition to the faculty member and a teaching assistant from Purdue, UIB staff members will be available to provide counsel, supervision, and any other assistance.

Classes are divided into two different segments: traditional classroom instruction and weekly excursions. Attendance at both segments is mandatory. Traditional classes meet Monday-Thursday in the classroom. Some excursions will take place on Fridays as indicated in the program calendar. Excursions are largely cultural activities that include visits to the world-renowned sites. Students will have access to Internet connection in the university and in their homes. Students are encouraged to bring their own laptop computers.

Eligibility & Cost

Purdue students with an overall minimum of 2.5 GPA are eligible to participate. They will have completed 4 semesters of college Spanish (101, 121, 102 and 202) or equivalent, will have the maturity travel internationally and adapt to a new culture, will be interested in learning. Applications are accepted now.

The program fee is estimated to be $4,500. This price includes tuition and fees, room and board and laundromat services at home with a Spanish host family, Palma, on-site orientations, excursions, and cultural activities. Purdue university provides a grant of $2,000 dollars to all students going abroad for 6 weeks or more.

Students must budget additional funds for airfare, textbooks, and personal expenses. Most financial aid may apply to summer study abroad.

Upon acceptance, a non-refundable deposit of $300 due by January 26, 2018.
