The Committee on Peace Studies,
The Center for Research on Diversity and Inclusion (CRDI), and The Department of Political Science present

SINGING FOR PEACE AND JUSTICE

A film series on the lives of three singers and their social movements

Paul Robeson, Pete Seeger, and Joan Baez were active participants in the social movements of their times. They struggled for workers’ rights, racial justice, peace, women’s equality, and protection of the environment.
Robeson, Seeger, and Baez exemplify the connections among art, culture, and political activism as seen in these exceptional documentary films.

Tuesday, February 9, 2016
Paul Robeson,
“Here I Stand”
7:00 - 9:00 pm • Beering Hall 2290

Tuesday February 16, 2016
Pete Seeger,
“The Power of Song”
7:00 - 9:00 pm • Beering Hall 2290

Tuesday, February 23, 2016
Joan Baez,
“How Sweet the Sound”
7:00 - 9:00 pm • Beering Hall 2290

The showings and discussion are open to all.
For further information contact Harry Targ (targ@purdue.edu)