Sharonda Woodford received her BA (2011) and MA (2013) from Jackson State University in political science. She is now pursuing a PhD in the Political Science Department at Purdue University. Her research examines LGBTQ identifies at the intersectional margins of race, class, gender, sexuality, and gender expression (performance). She is particularly interested in what scholar have identified as anti-LGBTQ violence inflicted upon LGBTQ identified or perceived people. More specifically, her research attempts to distinguish the violence that targets sexual orientation from the violence that targets gender nonconformity of some LGBTQ people. In addition, she takes an intersectional approach to this research to understand how the media frames survivors of anti-LGBTQ violence to address questions of political agency.

"Invisible the Politics of Violence towards Black Masculine Lesbians"

TALKIN & TESTIFYIN WORKS IN PROGRESS

SHARONDA WOODFORD

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 2, 2016

3:30 PM
BRNG 1284

For more information contact:
African American Studies & Research Center
Beering Hall of Liberal Arts and Education, Room 6182
100 N. University Street
West Lafayette, IN 47907-2098
Phone: 765-494-5680 Fax: 496-1581
Website:http://www.cla.purdue.edu/african-american/